INDEX TO PASTORAL STATIONS

NOTE: The names of Pastoral Stations which appear in this Index, are not necessarily the names of the stations, but are merely given as additional to the station name. In some cases, from the fact of the station name being either non-existent or unrecognizable, the owners name is all there is to identify the property. To find any station on the map, refer to the Index, which will give a letter and figure representing the square on the map within which the required station is situated. The same letter and figure being found on the margin of the map, their intersection gives the square required, and the station can then be easily found by inspection.

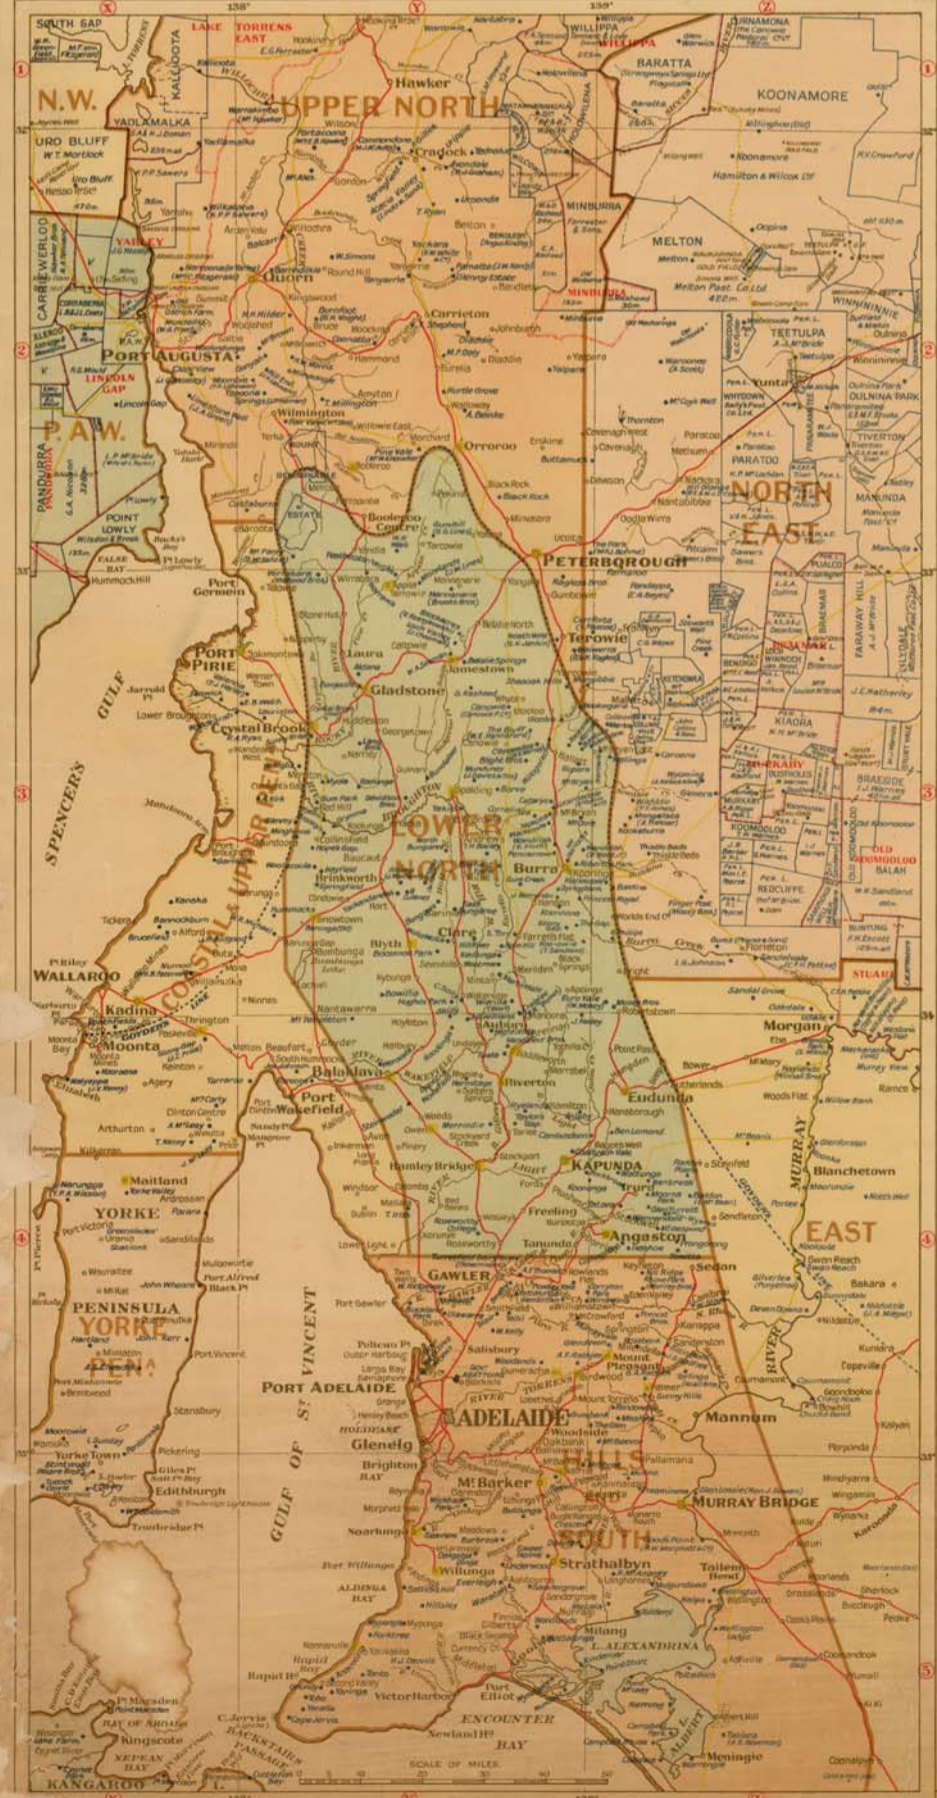

GOYDER'S LINE.
Goyder's Line of Rainfall, not in the ordinary sense a rainfall line, was originally laid down during the severe drought of 1865 by Mr. G. W. Goyder, at that time Surveyor General of South Australia, to indicate as accurately as possible the dividing boundary between the area South of the line, that had escaped the severe effects of the drought, and that North of the line which had suffered. It is questionable whether such good areas as the Franklin Harbour and Flinders Districts should not now be included in the Southern area, but otherwise, except for slight modifications, the line holds good to this day.

WOOL DISTRICTS.
The districts shown on this map define generally the areas producing distinct classes of wool. For the boundaries I am indebted to Messrs Elder Smith & Co. Ltd. of Adelaide, to whom also, together with Dalgety & Co. Ltd., I have to acknowledge valuable assistance in the compilation of the map.
